Charlie Kirk and Megyn Kelly floated the baseless conspiracy theory that Jeffrey Epstein was a Mossad agent — and admitted they had no evidence. That doesn't matter, because what people will remember is the lie.

This isn't just irresponsible. It's a textbook example of how right-wing antisemitism spreads: through conspiracies dressed up as innocent speculation. They gave oxygen to an age-old trope of Jewish control — and in today's climate, that's not just offensive. It's dangerous.

False claims that Jews control governments, media, or other areas of society are not new and are rooted in centuries-old antisemitic conspiracies.

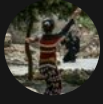

These myths have incited violence against Jews for generations. Repeating them, even as "speculation," is not harmless. It's dangerous.

You would deny that anyone was a Mossad agent. And yet Mossad is one of the most powerful intelligence agencies worldwide. Clearly, some people are in fact Mossad agents.

It is not antisemitic to posit that Jeffrey Epstein's unaccounted-for wealth, secretive financial investments for unaccounted-for clients, ties to countless highly influential wealthy individuals in finance, politics, tech, Hollywood, and intel, the sweetheart deal he got from Alex Acosta, and the questionable circumstances surrounding his death may have something to do with the CIA or Mossad, or both. Both the CIA and Mossad have a history of covert blackmailing operations - including via honeypot schemes.

Slinging the antisemitic smear won't quash discussion on the topic. People see through your gaslighting. It's all you have.

There is plenty of proof of Israel/Jews controlling people/government. Stating those facts does not make one an anti-Semite. Hurling that word every time some one questions things or states facts, is getting pretty old. Kind of like calling every conservative a racist. 🤡
