Croatia has stormed the Eurovision final with a historic anthem that denounces the Ottoman occupation and revives the ancient Christian tattoo tradition to protect young girls from rape

Performed entirely in Croatian, the song slams centuries of Islamic Turkish occupation of their lands and recalls how Catholic girls were tattooed with Christian motifs to stop them from being abducted, converted to Islam, and forced into sexual slavery

"That's why many chose the grave, our mothers did not birth slaves"

Turkey is already attacking the group for performing the song

If they made the song with genuine and pure intentions, I respect that. But looking at a 300 year-old historical event through today's lens feels like right-wing propaganda from Europe.
