The Daily Wire's Matt Walsh calls for the firing of AG Pam Bondi today after she announces the DOJ may prosecute Office Depot for refusing to print posters for a Charlie Kirk vigil in Michigan.

Walsh wrote on X: "Get rid of her. Today. This is insane. Conservatives have fought for decades for the right to refuse service to anyone. We won that fight. Now Pam Bondi wants to roll it all back for no reason. The employee who didn't print the flyer was already fired by his employer."

"This stuff is being handled successfully through free speech and free markets. This is totally gratuitous and pointless. We need the AG focused on bringing down the left wing terror cells, not prosecuting Office Depot for God's sake."

Matt is, of course, correct, and he is not the only conservative calling for her resignation today!

Something I agree with from Matt Walsh

She's out of touch with the culture war, the values at risk, and even the law itself.

I totally disagree with Walsh. He is not viewing the big picture. She is not going after Office Depot. She is leveling the field of free speech. In other words, if a shop can print posters for protest groups with a message of hate, surely the same shop can print posters on behalf of those who want to spread the message of love.

I don't know who is giving Bondi her marching orders or if she's coming up with these priorities herself, but her finger on the pulse of priorities is so far off it's embarrassing

I wonder if she's the source of all the backstabbing to Patel and Bongino. Maybe they're right to push against her.

I've got the Epstein files on my desk and will review them.

Just think how things would differ, if @FmrRepMattGaetz were attorney general right now. He's a firebrand, connected to the people, and would get things done.
IMO

She's acting like a typical Soft Republican,(dare I say RINO) not going far enough. It pains me that President Trump praises her like she's exceptional.

As time goes on for me, I believe she lets President Trump to push to a point, but not cross the line to truly restore American sovereignty, back to the American people.

Why Isn't she actively going after the Federal Reserve with investigations and motions in play to repeal the Federal Reserve Act of 1913 as an example.

In my view because that would under mine American Taxpayer money flow to the globalist elites with globalist agendas. One day that will be proven. It'll just take time.

She's dancing around issues, not tackling the core corruption in our political and judicial systems.

In other words, she's targeting low-hanging fruit instead of cutting out the cancer at the core, metaphorically speaking. That's my take

I can't disagree with Matt on this one.

She's happy to quickly get in front of television cameras to announce the most inane things while the country's on fire with significant heavy weightlifting required that she should be directing.

Her priorities are simply not in the right place, she's not moving quickly enough, and she doesn't have the teeth, muscle or energy to get down and dirty with what really matters.

I agree. We do not need the government for this anyways. We can use our wallets to boycott these places, and social media to show these companies their own employees. The government needs to stay out of this.

Matt is being emotional.

Office Depot is a Public Traded Company, not a privately owned cake bakery. Those employees were violating their SOP.

Again, people need to realize that her claim may be to simply carry a warning to other such companies, that have shareholders from all sorts of backgrounds and beliefs.

Waste of time by DOJ resources. Office Depot responded and remedied the situation.

The DOJ must be focusing scarce resources on issues that are seriously impacting our country such as MORTGAGE FRAUD by a Fed Governor!!!

@MattWalshBlog Here's a funny thing @AGPamBondi is out here chasing shadows at @HomeDepot when there's a whole circus of activist radicals, evil Antifa, and Leftist(whoever they are) tearing up the city and targeting conservatives. You'd think she'd be more focused on wrangling that chaotic mess, but no, she's got her sights set on a hardware store for not printing posters. Because apparently, free speech is only free when it suits us, and we can just snatch it away from others because... reasons? Priorities, Pam, priorities! Maybe she should leave the home improvement to the pros and focus on the real homewreckers out there.
