This is not to say they don't have any medical issues, however. There is a huge difference between some dental problems or eating a lot of white bread and refined sugar (which many do) —and the rampant vaccine-induced chronic illness we see in the general population.

About ALL

The largest concentrations of Amish are ~90,000 in Pennsylvania and ~82,000 in Ohio, and other communities have settled in as many as 32 other states. The current U.S. Amish population is rapidly approaching 400,000.

(My husband grew up with many here in our state, and we live near a small community now. I don't want to idealize them too much, and some of their culture is strange to me, but you can't hide that their children are vigorous, and grow up lacking the many health issues in the general U.S. population. I would also maybe include the Mennonite and German Baptist communities in this group.)

Amish families average 7 children. For the most part, they are solid traditionalists who are known for their simple living, plain dress, and Christian pacifism. They value rural life, manual labor, humility, and Gesundheit (submission to God's will) with a view neither to interrupt family time nor replace face-to-face conversations whenever possible.

They reject most conveniences of modern technology (TV, electronic devices) and pharmaceuticals and maintain self-sufficiency (including medically).

They also (for the most part) cook and eat outside of the contaminated mainstream food supply, raising their own meat and having big gardens, and often having their own type of grocery store like this one we've been in.

The Amish are among the healthiest people in the nation.

That study conducted by the Vaccine Safety Research Foundation found that COVID death rates among the Amish communities are 90 times LOWER than for the rest of America despite roughly 90% of the Amish having been infected with COVID.

The main difference, Kirsch revealed, is that Amish communities completely ignored the guidelines from the CDC. Amish families did not get vaccinated or wear masks, nor did they engage in lock-downs, social distancing, or any other type of restrictions.

What The CDC Has Known About the Amish All Along

Kirsch shared why there have never been any CDC or government reports published regarding the good health of Amish children in general.

“After decades of studying the Amish, there’s no report because that would be devastating to the narrative. It would show that CDC dictates have been harming the public for decades by saying nothing and burying all the data,” Kirsch testified.

Leading cardiologist Dr. Peter McCullough (with over 1000 peer-reviewed, published studies to his credit) spoke specifically about the rise of chronic conditions among the non-Amish public.

Steve Kirsch, Dr. McCullough, attorney Thomas Renz, and medico-legal death investigator Graham Hetrick all testified on the panel of experts.

It should shake us to the core that so many vaccinated American children and middle-aged Americans who received them in their childhood, suffer from devastating chronic conditions which include auto-immune disease, heart disease, diabetes, asthma, ADHD, arthritis, cancer, and autism.

These conditions are NON-EXISTANT among unvaxxed Amish communities.

According to expert testimony, no Amish child could be found who had suffered from cancer, autism, heart disease, or other conditions.

“I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made.
Wonderful are your works; my soul knows it very well.”

~Psalm 139:14

“Those who would give up essential liberty, to purchase a little temporary safety, deserve neither liberty of safety.”

~Benjamin Franklin

Why Marin County Had A Record-Breaking Decline in Autism Rates

Hi! I'm Jacqueline!

Thanks for being part of this journey with me.

Welcome to my own little place on the internet! Home is where I love to be. I feel there is no greater place to incubate souls. These days you'll find me using my experiences here to write about herbal remedies and natural health research — a big passion of mine. But being a wife and mother is not easy. It is challenging and potentially lonely. I get that. I wanted to create a place to connect with and support other moms for creating a natural, healthy, and fulfilling home life.
