It is accurate except the AIDs part, although it might not be wrong. In my part of the world it is written as 爱之病 (disease of love)

In all fairness, it could just be the crazy guy next door... every town has one of those dudes who writes shit all over his property like they are ancient runes to ward away evil... or blacks with aids. lol

Went to Japan in 2019 and Japanese being openly and proudly racist to Chinese tourists was the first and last time I saw actual racism. It was brutal, but hey, the Chinese were being loud and disrespectful. Taking off your shoes and popping blisters on the train is gross.

One of the characters in this context "爱, (love)" refers to romantic relationships, the stronger message is that if you refrain from having romantic relationships with black people, (or associations, friendships, etc.), you protect yourself from AIDS. @TRHOfficial
